

Safeguarding from Domestic Abuse

during the Coronavirus outbreak

You may be someone's only chance to get help - if not you, who?

We want to make sure that the most vulnerable people are safe during the current situation.

For women and children experiencing domestic abuse

Home is not always a place of safety.

We know perpetrators will use social isolation as a way to control and harm victims of abuse.

Women and children experiencing domestic abuse may not be able to reach out for support during this time.

Please keep your eyes and ears open

If you are concerned about someone experiencing domestic abuse do not hesitate to phone the Police 999
